Applicants must have a minimum of a recognized master's degree in arts education, visual arts or related fields, and with relevant teaching experience and academic expertise for undergraduate course. UBC/EDCP students in the doctoral program will have achieved candidacy. They should be familiar with K–12 school system's structure and services, with the various stakeholder groups and with authorities involved in the provision of education in British Columbia. Recent relevant experience teaching in both online/virtual and in person settings and enacting the BC curriculum with a focus on First People's Principles of Learning, Place, with knowledge of and commitment to eco-justice, environmental ethics, and cultural diversity are required for this position. Duties include teaching in person on the Vancouver campus, with the experience and required skills to transition to online if required, holding regular office hours, marking assignments, reporting grades, attending subject area meetings as well as follow-up appointments, where applicable.

Equity and diversity are essential to academic excellence. An open and diverse community fosters the inclusion of voices that have been underrepresented or discouraged. We encourage application from members of groups that have been marginalized on any grounds enumerated under the B.C. Human Rights Code, including sex, sexual orientation, gender identity or expression, racialization, disability, political belief, religion, marital or family status, age, and/or status as a First Nation, Metis, Inuit, or Indigenous person. We encourage all qualified applicants to apply; however, Canadians and permanent residents will be given priority.

Letters of application along with a current resume or CV are submitted to
