Elementary science is a required methods course for all students in the UBC BEd Elementary Education programme. Applicants must have a minimum of a recognized graduate degree preferably in science education, a Bachelor of Education degree with a specialization in elementary education, and experience teaching science in K-7 settings. An undergraduate degree in science is preferred. Recent relevant experience teaching in both online/virtual and in person settings and enacting the BC curriculum with a focus on First People's Principles of Learning, Place, with knowledge of and commitment to eco-justice/eco-consciousness and environmental ethics are required for this position. The applicant will be prepared to and must clearly indicate: the ability to incorporate climate and nature education into the course curriculum; and the necessary skills and experience to teach both an online and hybrid version of this course (please include examples). The applicant will have experience with the BC K-12 school system's structure and services and with the various stakeholder groups and authorities involved in the provision of education in British Columbia. Duties include teaching in person on the Vancouver campus, with the experience and required skills to transition to online if required, holding office hours, marking assignments, reporting grades, attending subject area meetings as well as follow-up appointments, where applicable.

Equity and diversity are essential to academic excellence. An open and diverse community fosters the inclusion of voices that have been underrepresented or discouraged. We encourage applications from members of groups that have been marginalized on any grounds enumerated under the B.C. Human Rights Code, including sex, sexual orientation, gender identity or expression, racialization, disability, political belief, religion, marital or family status, age, and/or status as a First Nation, Metis, Inuit, or Indigenous person.

All qualified candidates are encouraged to apply; however, Canadians and permanent residents will be given priority.

Letters of application along with a current resume or CV are submitted to
